

ALL ADIRONDACKS GREET VACATIONISTS THIS COMING WEEK

From End to End the North Woods Have as Strong a Vacation Argument as Ever. Many New Yorkers Go to the Woods Early—Saranacs Are Open. Lake Placid and Champlain Resorts Ready Too—Many Big Fish Stories Come Out.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., June 28.—The Saranac Lake Country Club, which has its house and grounds on the shore of Ampersand Bay, is arranging for a tennis tournament to be held on the courts next Saturday, opening the formal programme of summer sports. The first club tea will be served on the spacious porch, following the play. Dr. Joseph Longworth Nichols, president of the club, who with Mrs. Nichols returned this week from Europe and opened their Highland Park home, will be present.

The horsemen of Saranac Lake are training for a series of track meets to be held here during July and August. Several speedy horses have been developed, and the races will be interesting. The Driving Association is completing its arrangements for the old fashioned Fourth of July entertainment to be given at the driving park, on the Bloomingdale road.

Many prominent people are coming to the attractive cottages of Saranac Lake, and the town is taking on a gala air. Thomas A. Gardner of New York and Mammoth, a clubman, has taken the Coulter cottage on Shepard avenue for the summer. Mr. Gardner has spent many seasons in the Adirondacks, both at Saranac Lake and in camp on the St. Regis chain.

FISHING'S FINE

AT UPPER SARANAC
UPPER SARANAC, N. Y., June 28.—Catches of lake trout, bass and pickerel taken from the waters of Upper Saranac Lake during the last few days have been notable. Every kind of bait has seemed to catch the attention of the finny tribe, and even the lordly trout has stopped to be conquered. The largest pickerel of many years taken here was that of Harry Baldwin, captured this week and weighing thirty pounds.

Saranac Inn is on the line of improved highways and many motorists are using the fine roadways that rim the waters of the Saranac river and lake system. Mr. Harrington Mills, manager of the inn, motored up from Washington and found the Adirondack roads throughout the region in general to be excellent, and the motoring "time" all that he expected.

Practically every camp on the big lake is open, and cottages at the inn are filled.

Geoffrey Morkell of Lima, Peru, has been spending several days at the inn, dividing his time between canoeing and fishing.

The Lewis camp on the bay has been opened by its owner, P. D. Lewis of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney M. Colgate of New York, who take a prominent part in summer life at the resort, have opened their camp near the inn. Mrs. J. D. Dunn is entertaining a jolly house party at Camp Sunrise, where she was joined this week by Desmond Dunn and John L. Helms of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Dickson of Morristown, N. J., came up this week and opened Deer Island camp, and Robert Bentley of Youngstown, Ohio, returned to occupy his new camp on the bay.

ony are Dr. W. L. McDougall of Montreal, Miss M. L. Lloyd and Henry Fifth of Philadelphia at the Bitches, and William Barker Brown of Rouses, N. J. Milton Work has rejoined his guests at the Wilewam.

JUSTICE HUGHES TAKES A LAKE PLACID CAMP

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., June 28.—Members of the recently organized Lake Placid Automobile Association, which includes the majority of the camp and cottage owners, are planning a series of runs about this section of the Adirondack country.

That the season will be one of the most active in the history of the Lake Placid Club is now evident. The officers have arrived at their various summer places and the work of preparing the race card for the season is now under way. The annual meeting will take place at the clubhouse on July 1. The afternoon teas on race days and the receptions will take place during the season as usual.

Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court, who is an honorary member of the yacht club, arrived with members of his family on Wednesday and will spend the summer at Camp Edgemoor on Moose Island in Lake Placid, which he has leased for the season.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, who is at Repose bungalow with Mrs. Parkhurst, is devoting a share of his time to long talks about the vicinity of Lake Placid.

The Rev. Dr. Nowell Dwight Hillis will arrive soon at his camp on the shores of Mirror Lake and Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University is expected later in the season at his camp on the road to John Brown's grave.

J. Brandt Walker is at his cottage here with Mrs. Walker. They have their car and devote much time to motoring.

Dr. Henry L. Marey, Jr., has arrived and opened Green Top, his camp on the west side of Lake Placid.

Mrs. Cantor, wife of Jacob Cantor, former president of the Borough of Manhattan, has arrived with her children at a cottage they have leased for the season. They will be joined later by Mr. Cantor, who is now in Europe.

Edwin Norton of New York is expected soon at his cottage on Signal Hill.

Congressman and Mrs. Steven B. Ayres, who are the owners of a summer place on Signal Hill, are expected up later in the season.

Miss Cunningham is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carney at Camp Bala-wee and Mrs. James Hardie of Brooklyn has opened Windyknock, her Signal Hill summer place. William J. McConville, with his mother, Mrs. McConville, has returned for the season at the Stevens House, has given much of the week to golf. Mr. McConville is secretary of the yacht club. John Dunn of Bournemouth, England, the noted English golfer, is a recent arrival at that hotel.

In one of the numerous automobile parties reaching the Stevens House early in the week were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Duncker, and C. H. Duncker, Jr.; H. P. Duncker, Mrs. M. D. Ludwig and Miss Ludwig of New York. In another New York party were Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith, George K. Smith and Lyman Smith.

AUTOMOBILE ROUTES

LEAD TO WESTPORT

WESTPORT-ON-CHAMPLAIN, N. Y., June 28.—The prophecy of a record season for northern New York resorts of the Adirondack and Lake Champlain region in 1913 is being fulfilled, and a vast army of visitors is now moving into the mountains, a large proportion of whom are coming by automobile.

Road construction between Schroon Lake and Elizabethtown in the State system of highways makes that route impossible and the motorists are taking the parallel route along the western shore of Lake Champlain from Ticonderoga to Westport. From Albany north the route is by Saratoga Springs to Lake George, where two routes are available. One is by way of Schroon Lake and Ticonderoga, with one or two short detours. The other route, which is much favored, is to ferry from the Saranac on Lake George to Sabbath Day Point and then by highway along the northern end of this beautiful body of water to Ticonderoga. From Schroon Lake a fine road leads eastward along the shores of Eagle and Paradox lakes to Crown Point, where it joins the stone road to Port Henry and Westport.

The great expanse of Lake Champlain, which is 173 miles long and from two to twelve miles wide, makes it a favored rendezvous of yachts and motor boats.

The completion of the barge canal at the southern end of the lake next year will make it possible for the large ocean going yachts to cruise through Lake Champlain to the great lakes and St. Lawrence River resorts. Already enough of the canal is completed that 75 foot boats may journey through. The group of attractive cottages at Westport Inn have been leased for the season and will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Purdy, Mr. and Mrs. James Lusk, Banks of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar M. Morseman and family of Omaha, Neb. Many of the season's visitors at the inn have arrived and taken up their reservations.

FISH STORIES FROM LAKE CHAMPLAIN

BLUFF POINT, ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN, June 28.—Thus far the favorite pastime here has been fishing and the anglers are having rare sport. The records are held by William Hoppler of New York, who caught the biggest fish, a fifteen pound pickerel, and Edward S. Jerome of Chicago, who caught a mess of fifty-two smaller fry.

Frequent moonlight excursions to Burlington are proving decidedly popular, as boats start from Bluff Point and Plattsburgh, and also Cliff Haven, where the Catholic summer school is located.

Many Canadians have crossed the border to spend the week, which includes the Canadian national holiday, Dominion Day, this mingling harmoniously with the American Independence Day on territory which three centuries ago was a common battleground.

The preparations are being made for the opening of Camp Setag, where fifty or more Buffalo young ladies will spend the summer under the chaperonage of Miss Ada M. Gates. The camp is a summer school.

Mr. Robert E. MacAlarney and family of New York will spend the summer season at their cottage.

GAY SEASON AT MANHATTAN BEACH
With "grass greener and sea bluer than ever" the season is on at Manhattan Beach. The animated kaleidoscope scenes at the bathing beach, the constantly occupied tennis courts at the Oriental Hotel and its open air casino filled with dinner parties, many coming from Manhattan and Brooklyn by automobile, give the impression that it is the height of the season.

Miles of Pictures.
PARIS, June 28.—An ingenious statistician has worked out the average of the pictures exhibited this year at the various Paris salons. The total extent of canvas is fifteen square kilometers, made up as follows: Portraits, 1.2 km.; landscapes, 2.3 km.; interiors, 1 km.; military scenes, 2.9 km.; classical subjects, 2.5 km.; decorative paintings, 1 km.; miscellaneous, 1 km. Statistics is a splendid science, says the Quotidien in commenting on these figures.

Automobileists are finding this section a favorite motoring resort. The roads from Albany are in good shape.

At the Adirondack Inn, which is again under the management of C. O. Chamberlin, there was a fancy dress ball this evening.

ALLURING SUMMER LIFE ON CAPE COD

Picturesque Setting of Old Sea Captains Attracts Devoted Visitors. State Roads for Automobileists—Golf and Health Giving Pastimes

The Cape is no longer the school for sea captains that it was once, but the maritime world has felt the influence of their schooling, and the Cape gives evidence of it, although they no longer sail the seas. Their ancestral acres have been divided into house lots on which summer sojourners build cottages. The chief signs of prosperity on Cape Cod are in the communities frequented by summer visitors.

The chief business of the Cape to-day is entertaining summer visitors. They come in greater numbers every year, stay longer and go away better satisfied. All the way down to Provincetown are seen the fine homes of the wealthy class who spend the summer months there. Cottages of every description are building each summer and hotels are also building at desirable points. Staw roads have penetrated communities that were hitherto inaccessible. These roads bring the automobilists.

Cape Cod life is a life full of health giving enjoyments and of novel surprises. Out of the perplexing and trying intricacies of city life you pass into the quiet of woods, of stream and of lakes. A great peace of soul falls upon you. The air is full of healing. You are living hand in hand with nature all day long, watching her gradual changes, the sunrise, the growth of storms, the loveliness of the color of the woods, the fascination of the restless sea.

The most ardent golfer cannot help but be satisfied with the splendid opportunities he will have for enjoying this sport down on the Cape. There are very good nine hole courses at Woods Hole, Osterville, Hyannisport and Yarmouth. Truro and Wellfleet will soon have golf links among their other attractions. Cape Cod roads offer perpetual variety. Here and there are fine open views of meadows and marshes bounded by wood-land or sea. It is a diversified panorama of simple beauties.

The homes are comfortable, well kept and clean. Almost every home is embowered with the vines and blossoms of the beautiful rose. Old fashioned flower gardens ornament the front lawns and during the summer give forth sweet fragrance to the passing wayfarer.

All over the Cape are windmills which once ground the corn into meal or pumped the sea water into wooded vats for the purpose of making salt by evaporation. The salt works have disappeared long ago and the mills no longer grind.

One Cape Cod village may be described as typical of most of the villages on the Cape. There is a broad street, above which the branches of elm and poplar trees interlace. It has its sunny nooks, its gaily black bass, pickerel and perch, and the fragrant water lily. From every hilltop is a lovely view of peaceful country.

It has its churches of every denomination; the post office, where residents and city folk meet to wait for the mail; stores, old houses stored with curiously fashioned furniture, rare ornaments and curios which would delight the soul of an antiquarian. Then there is the little village library with its pleasantly furnished reading room and the village hall, where some sort of entertainment is provided almost every evening.

In each village there are old time sailors who went to sea for sixty years and who now busy themselves with the lighter duties of skippers of catboats that take parties to the bathing beach or fishing ground. The summer visitor will find much interest in listening to their tales.

Vacation life on Cape Cod is quiet, restful and withal a healthful life. It is good for fagged brains and tired nerves. One of the old things about Cape Cod is the number of fresh water ponds you see, no matter in which direction you drive. Cast a line in one of these ponds and you'll get bass, pickerel and perch. There are 15 lakes on Cape Cod that have an area of more than ten acres. In the town of Barnstable alone are twenty-seven ponds. No town on Cape Cod has less than five.

There is always good fishing down on Cape Cod. The coast line is cut every few miles by some bay or harbor, just the right place for fish to spawn. At any of the shore villages one will find old sea captains who will be glad to take him out to the fishing grounds in their catboats. These are a safe, safe and comfortable craft in a seaway, and you can take a most ideal of pleasure in sailing one. Most of them nowadays are equipped with a gasoline engine; the owner is thus sure of reaching home against wind or tide.

WORLD'S BEST SPORTING BEACH
ONE of the best sporting beaches in the world from the point of view of the surf bathers is the Great South Beach of Long Island, as it runs from thirty to eighty miles from New York. It is not a smooth, gentle slope in most places and is not comparable for ease of bathing with some beaches elsewhere on the Atlantic seaboard, but it offers more exhilaration and more thrill than any of its superiors. Yes, there is an undertow. Very often it is unsafe to let go the bathing lines. The ability to swim is not a perfect safeguard, because very often it is impossible to swim here unless one is dangerously far out beyond the surried line of breakers. The pictures above give an idea of this surf and beach, and also of the hayrack work to ships bound to or from New York.

Some of those shortly expected are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carey, Mrs. Julius S. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Wayne Froukles, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Clark, the Misses Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Redwood Vandegrift, Col. and Mrs. William Wheatley, Mr. and Mrs. Garret B. Wall.
